 Description of Property and Eligibility Determination (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map and photo)

The Hyland House, was converted in the 1990s from a single family dwelling to a commercial building. The orientation of the building shifted from the main southern façade facing Shawan Road, to a side entrance near the octagonal tower in the middle of the building. Several post-modern elements, such as the open frame porch roof and large replacement windows illustrate the extensive renovations to the building. As a result, the Hyland House no longer retains sufficient integrity of materials, setting, feeling and association, and thus is not eligible under Criterion C for the National Register of Historic Places.

The Martin W. Hyland House is the first of six houses running from east to west along the north side of Shawan Road in the village of Marble Hill, Baltimore County, Maryland. The house faces south towards Shawan Road. This Queen Anne style dwelling was built c. 1893 on an uncoursed rubble foundation and its original wooden German siding is now covered with stucco embedded with small stones. The house consists of three sections: the original gable-fronted section, rectangular in plan, is  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -stories tall, 2-bays wide and 3-bays deep; attached to the north facade of the original section is a  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -story gable-roofed addition, also rectangular in plan, that is 3-bays wide and 2-bays deep; attached to the northwest corner of this addition is the third (rear) section, a  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -story structure with a gable roof, 2-bays wide and one-bay deep. The roofs on all sections are covered with asphalt composition shingles. The dwelling is also characterized by a semi-octagonal turret appended to the east facade and a one-story porch fronting the north, east and south facades.

The Martin W. Hyland House is significant as a good example of the Queen Anne architectural style popular in the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century. The house contributes significantly to the Victorian character of Marble Hill.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Martin W. Hyland House is the first of six houses running from east to west along the north side of Shawan Road in the village of Marble Hill, Baltimore County, Maryland. The house faces south towards Shawan Road and sits approximately 235' west of the junction of Shawan and York Roads. A 20' alley (Hyland Avenue) binds along the eastern side of the property.

This Queen Anne style dwelling was built c. 1893 on an uncoursed rubble foundation and its original wooden German siding is now covered with stucco embedded with small stones. The house consists of three sections: the original gable-fronted section, rectangular in plan, is 2½-stories tall, 2-bays wide and 3-bays deep; attached to the north facade of the original section is a 2½-story gable-roofed addition, also rectangular in plan, that is 3-bays wide and 2-bays deep; attached to the northwest corner of this addition is the third (rear) section, a 2½-story, gable-roofed structure that is 2-bays wide and one-bay deep. The roofs on all sections are covered with asphalt composition shingles.

The original section features an open 2-bay porch which fronts the east and south facades. Appended to the central bay of the east facade is a one-bay wide, one-bay deep enclosed entry. The entry is characterized by a door in its south facade and a window with 1/1 lights in its east facade. Appended to the northernmost bay of the east facade of the dwelling is a 2½-story semi-octagonal turret topped with an octagonal roof. First story level windows extend from floor to ceiling and have 2/4 lights. Windows at the second story level are arched on the south facade and all have 2/2 lights. Windows on the first and second story levels of the turret have 2/1 lights. All windows, except those of the turret, are flanked by louvred wooden blinds. At the first story level, the central bay on the western facade is a stained glass casement window. There is no window in the southern bay on the western facade.

The gable roof of the middle addition runs from east to west. The east facade of the first story is recessed one-bay deep to create a porch under the second story. A wooden door punctuates the north bay on the first story east facade. Second story windows on the east facade are arched. All windows have 2/2 lights and are flanked by louvred wooden blinds.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Martin W. Hyland House is significant as a good example of the Queen Anne architectural style popular in the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century. The house contributes significantly to the Victorian character of Marble Hill, a crossroads village in Baltimore County, Maryland.

HISTORY AND SUPPORT

The crossroads village of Marble Hill developed in the last quarter of the nineteenth century as a result of its strategic location at the junction of Western Run Turnpike (now Shawan Road) and York Turnpike (now York Road). Both turnpikes were heavily traveled in the late 1800's and early 1900's by persons transporting goods north to York, Pennsylvania or south to Baltimore. Western Run Turnpike, in operation from 1867 to 1918, located one of its tollgates (no longer extant) on the south side of Shawan Road near York Road. In addition to servicing these toll roads, Marble Hill became a community for people working in the nearby marble quarries and iron ore mines. Today Marble Hill consists of about 16 buildings erected primarily between 1880 and 1900; of the six buildings identified on the Hopkins 1877 Atlas of Baltimore County, only two remain.

In January 1893, Martin W. Hyland purchased a 30' x 180' lot for $250 from John and Amelia Wight, owners of a large estate known as "Bonnie Blink" north of this lot (Baltimore County Land Records, liber LMB 196, folio 48). Hyland and Wight's son William H. Wight were business partners who operated Wight & Highland's store (BA-277) which occupies the lot directly east of this dwelling.

Hyland sold the property in 1934 to Chester and Estelle Albrecht (liber CWB 928, folio 283) and, because Hyland held a mortgage on the property for them, the Albrecht's deeded the property back to Hyland the same day (liber CWB 928, folio 288). The Albrechts apparently

The rear addition is characterized by a gable roof running north to south and a one-story screened porch which fronts the east and north facades. The western half of the porch along the north facade has been enclosed to form a storage shed. All windows feature 2/2 lights and are flanked by louvred wooden blinds.

The interior of the house has been divided into two living quarters, one on each story level. The first story interior of the original portion is characterized by a hall which runs from east to west and which separates the north parlor from the south parlor. Both rooms are rectangular in plan and the east wall of the north room terminates in a semi-octagonal bay. The random width pine floors are now covered with linoleum and the walls are made of plaster. A fireplace in the south room on the north wall has been closed over with plaster while a fireplace on the north wall of the north parlor features a c. 1900 black marble mantel. The interior of the middle addition is comprised of one room, used as a dining room, and accented by a tin ceiling. The rear addition contains a semi-modern kitchen, a bathroom and a flight of stairs.

The second story level was inaccessible.

defaulted on their mortgage and the property reverted back to Hyland, who held the property as a joint tenant with his wife Katherine and their two daughters, Mary Elizabeth and Sara Campbell. The two unmarried sisters occupied the dwelling through the late 1970's (interview with neighbor, Maruice Kearney, April 1981). Title recently passed to Frank McDermott, a businessman who plans to renovate the dwelling for use as offices.

The original and middle sections were probably constructed prior to 1896 because the tax list for that year assessed this house for twice the amount as that for a similar house next door (BA-2125) which did not have its larger additions until the 1950's. The rear addition predates 1918 because the tax list for that year gives the current dimensions for all three sections.
